How to Read a Citation
Selections from the reference lists at the end of chapters in the textbook “Gendered Worlds” (2012, Aulette and Wittner)

Clues

Book citations will list the city in which the book was published (and state, if it’s not a well known city), followed by the name of the publisher.

Examples

New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers University Press
San Francisco: Harper and Row
Clues

Book citations will list the city in which the book was published (and state, if it’s not a well known city), followed by the name of the publisher.

Examples

New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers University Press

San Francisco: Harper and Row
Some book citations are for book chapters.
Clue: Look for the word “In.”

Clues

But...one is a lot shorter. Why?

Clues

But...one is a lot shorter. Why?

Clues

When there isn’t any detail about the book other than the author’s name, this usually means that the full citation is somewhere else in the reference list. Look for “Tolleson-Rinehart” farther down the reference list and you’ll find the full information for that book.

This one has all the information you need to find the book.
Clues

Journal, magazine, and newspaper citations will have two titles. One is the title of the article itself and one is the title of the journal -- just like a song title and an album title.

Clues

Journal, magazine, and newspaper citations will have \textit{two} titles. One is the title of the article itself and one is the title of the journal -- just like a song title and an album title.

Clues

Journals and magazines are a bit different from newspapers. Journal and magazine titles are followed by the volume number, issue number, and page numbers:

Political Research Quarterly 46 (2):418-502

Journal of Peace Psychology 7 (3):227-42
Clues

Journals and magazines are a bit different from newspapers.
Journal and magazine titles are followed by the volume number, issue number, and page numbers:

Political Research Quarterly 46 (2):418-502
Journal of Peace Psychology 7 (3):227-42
Clues

Newspaper and news publisher titles are followed by the date the article was published.

WeNews, February 20.
Associated Press, April 30.
Clues

Websites have the web address (URL). Just look for the http://.

Sometimes you might find a newspaper article with a website listed. Sometimes you’ll find a government report that’s on a website.

Look for other clues to know what type of document you’re looking for.
Analysis

Let’s look at that reference list again.

What kind of document are each of the following citations?

What are the clues?

